Children Passing in the Streets

The Roots of Our Radicalism
"I learned to make my mind large, as the universe is large, so that there is room for paradoxes." – Maxine Hong Kingston*

We are women from all kinds of childhood streets: the farms of Puerto Rico, the downtown streets of Chinatown, the barrio, city-Bronx streets, quiet suburban sidewalks, the plains, and the reservation.

In this first section, you will find voices from our childhoods, our youth. What we learned about survival – trying to-pass-for-white, easy-to-pass-for-white, "she couldn't pass in a million years." Here, we introduce to you the "color problem" as it was first introduced to us: "not white enuf, not dark enuf", always up against a color chart that first got erected far outside our families and our neighborhoods, but which invaded them both with systematic determination.

In speaking of color and class, Tillie Olsen once said: "There's no such thing as passing." Here are women of every shade of color and grade of class to prove that point. For although some of us traveled more easily from street corner to corner than the sister whose color or poverty made her an especially visible target to the violence on the street, all of us have been victims of the invisible violation which happens indoors and inside ourselves: the self-abnegation, the silence, the constant threat of cultural obliteration.

We were born into colored homes. We grew up with the inherent contradictions in the color spectrum right inside those homes: the lighter sister, the mixed-blood cousin, being the darkest one in the family. It doesn't take many years to realize the privileges, or lack thereof, attached to a particular shade of skin or texture of hair. It is this experience that moves light-skinned or "passable" Third World women to put ourselves on the line for our darker sisters. We are all family. From those families we were on the one hand encouraged to leave, to climb up white. And with the other hand, the reins were held tight on us, our parents understanding the danger that bordered our homes.

We learned to live with these contradictions. This is the root of our radicalism.

When I Was Growing Up

Nellie Wong

I know now that once I longed to be white. How? you ask.
Let me tell you the ways.

when I was growing up, people told me I was dark and I believed my own darkness in the mirror, in my soul, my own narrow vision when I was growing up, my sisters with fair skin got praised for their beauty, and in the dark I fell further, crushed between high walls when I was growing up, I read magazines and saw movies, blonde movie stars, white skin, sensuous lips and to be elevated, to become a woman, a desirable woman, I began to wear imaginary pale skin when I was growing up, I was proud of my English, my grammar, my spelling fitting into the group of smart children smart Chinese children, fitting in, belonging (getting in line) when I was growing up and went to high school, I discovered the rich white girls, a few yellow girls, their imported cotton dresses, their cashmere sweaters, their curly hair and I thought that I too should have what these lucky girls had when I was growing up, I hungered for American food, American styles, coded: white and even to me, a child born of Chinese parents, being Chinese was feeling foreign, was limiting, was unAmerican when I was growing up and a white man wanted to take me out, I thought I was special, an exotic gardenia, anxious to fit the stereotype of an oriental chick when I was growing up, I felt ashamed of some yellow men, their small bones, their frail bodies, their spitting on the streets, their coughing, their lying in sunless rooms, shooting themselves in the arms when I was growing up, people would ask if I were Filipino, Polynesian, Portuguese. They named all colors except white, the shell of my soul, but not my dark, rough skin when I was growing up, I felt dirty. I thought that god made white people clean and no matter how much I bathed, I could not change, I could not shed my skin in the gray water when I was growing up, I swore I would run away to purple mountains, houses by the sea with nothing over my head, with space to breathe, uncongested with yellow people in an area called Chinatown, in an area I later learned was a ghetto, one of many hearts of Asian America

I know now that once I longed to be white. How many more ways? you ask. Haven't I told you enough?

she never wanted no never once did she wanna be white/to pass dreamed only of bein darker she wanted to be darker not yellow/not no high brown neither but brown/warm brown she dreamed/her body moist earth brown she prayed/for chocolate semi/sweet/bitter/sweet dark chocolate nipples crownin her small chested tits 2 hersheys kisses sittin sweet like top of 2 round scoops of smooth milk chocolate ice cream momma took her outta almost all black lincoln high cuz she useta catch hell every day in gym class the other girls reactin to her like she was the cause of some kinda gawdawful allergy they all had contact could be fatal survivors would be scarred with kindness

cuz she wasn dark enuf was smart enuf wasn rowdy enuf had a white girl friend cuz none of them would be beige or buff/ecru or chamois jus wasn color/ed enuf to get picked for the softball team wasn sufficient protection 'gainst gettin tripped in the shower she wondered/would they have treated florence ballard so shabbily

but she envied them all felt every once now and then they just mighta been righteously justified since/after all they was brown like the sun loved they skin special cuz it warmed 'em chestnut bronze copper sepia cinnamon cocoa mahogany her/she was drab faded out yellow like a scorched july sky just fore it rains & rinses away the hint of brown from the smog she wasn/no maureen peal no 'high yellow dream child' not/dichty a hex muttered not/hinkty a curse let fly not/saditty like girls was spozed to be did they went to catholic school or was they from germantown or baldwin hills or

For the Color of My Mother
Cherríe Moraga

I am a white girl gone brown to the blood color of my mother speaking for her through the unnamed part of the mouth the wide-arched muzzle of brown women at two my upper lip split open clear to the tip of my nose it spilled forth a cry that would not yield that travelled down six floors of hospital where doctors wound me into white bandages only the screaming mouth exposed the gash sewn back into a snarl would last for years

I am a white girl gone brown to the blood color of my mother speaking for her at five, her mouth pressed into a seam a fine blue child’s line drawn across her face her mouth, pressed into mouthing english mouthing yes yes yes mouthing stoop lift carry (sweating wet sighs into the field her red bandana comes loose from under the huge brimmed hat moving across her upper lip) at fourteen, her mouth painted, the ends drawn up the mole in the corner colored in darker larger mouthing yes she praying no no no lips pursed and moving at forty-five, her mouth bleeding into her stomach the hole gaping growing redder deepening with my father's pallor finally stitched shut from hip to breastbone an inverted V

   Vera
   Elvira

I am a white girl gone brown to the blood color of my mother speaking for her as it should be dark women come to me sitting in circles I pass through their hands the head of my mother painted in clay colors touching each carved feature swollen eyes and mouth they understand the explosion the splitting open       contained within the fixed expression they cradle her silence nodding to me

I Am What I Am

Rosario Morales

I am what I am and I am U.S. American I haven't wanted to say it because if I did you'd take away the Puerto Rican but now I say go to hell I am what I am and you can't take it away with all the words and sneers at your command I am what I am I am Puerto Rican I am U.S. American I am New York Manhattan and the Bronx I am what I am I'm not hiding under no stoop behind no curtain I am what I am I am Boricua as borícuas come from the isle of Manhattan and I croon Carlos Gardel tangoes in my sleep and Afro-Cuban beats in my blood and Xavier Cugat's lukewarm latin is so familiar and dear sneer dear but he's familiar and dear but not Carmen Miranda who's a joke because I never was a joke I was a bit of a sensation See! here's a real true honest-to-god Puerto Rican girl and she's in college Hey! Mary come here and look she's from right here a South Bronx girl and she's honest-to-god in college now Ain't that something who would believed it Ain't science wonderful or some such thing a wonder a wonder

And someone who did languages for a living stopped me in the subway because how I spoke was a linguist's treat I mean there it was yiddish and spanish and fine refined college educated english and irish which I mainly keep in my prayers It's dusty now I haven't said my prayers in decades but try my Hail Marrrry full of grrrace with the nun's burr with the nun's disdain its all true and its all me do you know I got an English accent from the BBC I always say For years in the mountains of Puerto Rico when I was 22 and 24 and 26 all those young years I listened to the BBC and Radio Moscow's English english announcers announce and denounce and then I read Dickens all the way thru three or four times at least and then later I read Dickens aloud in voices and when I came back to the U.S. I spoke mockdickens and mockBritish especially when I want to be crisp efficient I know what I am doing and you can't scare me tough that's why I am what I am and I'm a bit of a snob too Shit! why am I calling myself names I really really dig the funny way the British speak and it's real it's true and I love too the singing of yiddish sentences that go with shrugs and hands and arms doing melancholy or lively dances I love the sound and look of yiddish in the air in the body in the streets in the English language nooo so what's new so go by the grocer and buy some fruit oye vey gevalt gefilte fish raisele oh and those words hundreds of them dotting the english language like raisins in the bread shnook and schlemiel suftik tush schmata all those soft sweet sounds saying sharp sharp things I am what I am and I'm naturalized Jewish-American wasp is foreign and new but Jewish-American is old show familiar schmata familiar and its me dears its me bagels blintzes and all I am what I am Take it or leave me alone.
I was awakened by the sound of school children screaming at each other. I thought I heard them beating some one. Loud solid thumps quivered in my ears, a hoarse voice, horribly chanting in rapid succession, "oh my god, oh my god" . . .

I closed my eyes and sunk into the panic that terrorized my morning. I flew back in time, somewhere in grade school, walking home with my cousin Virginia . . .

There was an unmistakeable bitter taste in the air around us, forewarning. It was the moment before the actual sight of them coming that froze our hearts with fear. Suddenly like a stampede of wild bulls they plummeted towards us. A half dozen or more boys, a frenzied blur of leather jackets, screaming wild devils, thrashing at us with the harsh stiff leather, metal teeth zippers battering our bewildered bodies. We ran on rubber band legs; I could hear Virginia calling, "Mama, Mama." In my ears was a sound like the beating of wings, barbed wings that stung my skin, that made my lip swell in pain, we ran hard thru the obstacle course of confused bodies, their horrifying shrieks of rage thru the rain of leather.

By some miracle they scattered, the same force that brought them seemed to snatch them up again and they were scattered to other dark corners of the barrio.

My face was hot and swollen, i felt my tears burning rivers down my cheeks. I could still hear Virginia crying for her mother, though now she was just a mass of pain & crying. I could remember my own silence thundering thru my body.

As we neared home, my fear increased. I knew what would await me there. I could close my eyes and see the vision a hundred times over.

I would slowly approach the door and before my entire body entered, she could smell the mischief, sense the energy – my grandmother immediately stopped whatever she was doing and demanded a full story. But always my story would be cut in mid-sentence. Because whatever state i was in, i provoked it.
“Why are you Dirty?” “Have you been fighting?” “Did you tear your dress?” — a volley of quick demands and accusations came threateningly to me, making me feel scared, watching her come towards me, reaching over to the door where the razor strap hung “her bonito” as she called it. Reaching towards me, strap in hand. My feet turning to lead. Trying to run away, backing into a corner.

II

But where the strap couldn't reach me, a vicious pinch could. I flew thru the door being chased by more leather stings.

I ran far, sometimes two blocks away, my skin boiling, red criss-crosses atop the scratches that the leather jackets had made. I cried alone barely able to make out the shapes of people and cars thru my tears.

I am awake now, my lover still sleeping beside me, wondering how we can blend our two worlds. How to mend the holes in our pasts, walk away bravely from the nightmares.

Her attacks were more subtle, hidden within the false shelter of her home; instead of gangs of boys chasing her, her brother was the nightly intrusion, using her young child body to masturbate with, as she closed her eyes too numb and scared to speak.

We both have no choice but to be survivors though the fears are still there. Whenever i see a crowd of men, my heart sinks to my feet, whenever i hear sudden noises, sudden crashing, anger, male noises, their very laughter is abrasive to my ears. I shrink inside, walk close to the walls of my soul, i look for a place to hide.
He Saw

Chrystos

his roots/went back to the reservation old pain/old hunger
None of the ghosts were there He went fishing caught one or more every day The fishing is what he needed to do Gathering wild rice, remembered after years of suits, ties, clocks adjustments what he began & left
He writes me about the fish I grow hungry

He gave me all the whitest advantages square house, football school, white mother baking white bread in a white oven

He wanted to spare me his pain didn't Silently our misunderstandings shred rage clouds our blood ties I stare at his words wonder who he is Lonely red daddy cradling ghost of his mama died when he was nine pretending he was born without a father without straightjackets Daddy you write in a painfully practiced scrawl you learned learned beaten down a dying fish You go back & can't stay Bring me a sack of rice

I want your wildness, want the boy who left on a freight car I want a boy who cried because his mother is dead & his daddy's gone crazy I want the one who gathered water & wood I don't want this man who cut off his hair joined the government to be safe
We are both in danger of your ancient fear I learned to fish on my own stopped
Now I'm learning to weave nets
