LES NOUVELLES ACQUISITIONS

Ruisseaux et rivières sont pollués par les activités humaines, ici en plein cœur de La Paz, en Bolivie. Cette ville est située non du lac Titicaca, berceau de la civilisation Inca, le plus grand lac d'eau douce d'Amérique latine, aujourd'hui menacé d'asphyxie. Dans le cadre d'un projet ANR original "La Pachamama", une équipe internationale de scientifiques réalise le bilan écologique du lac et étudie, pour la première fois in situ, le transport et le devenir biochimiques du mercure et de ses isotopes.
